

Polysomnography

The Polysomnographic Technology Certificate Program combines online courses with hands-on clinical experience. All clinical experience will be completed in an accredited sleep lab in the student's hometown. Upon completion of all required coursework and clinical hours, students will be required to travel to our campus in Klamath Falls, Oregon (or to an alternate site in Dayton, Ohio) for one day. On this day, students will complete final written assessments and a practical exam in preparation for the national boards to obtain the RPSGT credential

Program Length: 9 months

Start Terms: Fall, Winter, Spring and Summer

Application Deadline: 90 days prior to the start date

Additional Requirements: Students must meet Oregon Tech's standard admission requirements. Students must also complete a background check and provide the following information/documentation: CPR certification, health status, proof of health coverage or insurance, Hepatitis-B vaccine, a drug screen if required by the clinical site.

Program Costs: Tuition is currently $214 per credit. There is a $60 fee for each class. The total cost of tuition and fees for the certificate is just under $10,100. The cost of books and supplies is additional. Tuition and fees are reviewed each year and are subject to change.

Clinical Courses: Students must complete 540 clinical hours (18 college credits). We ask that ALL potential applicants contact the Program Director prior to applying; she will explain how the internship sites are set up. There must be an accredited sleep clinic in your area where you can obtain hands-on training.

To Apply: To apply for admission, complete and submit a Distance Education Application for Admission and a Statement of Acknowledgement. (Both available at www.oit.edu/online/apply)
