

Raman Malhotra, MD, is currently a professor of neurology at the Sleep Medicine Center at Washington University in St. Louis. He also serves as the program director of the Sleep Medicine Fellowship at Washington University in St. Louis. Dr. Raman Malhotra attended the University of Missouri-Kansas City for his undergraduate degree and medical school. He then completed his neurology residency and sleep medicine fellowship at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, Michigan. He is board certified in neurology and sleep medicine. He served as president for the American Academy of Sleep Medicine (AASM) from 2021-22 and has served on the board of directors for the AASM since 2015. He has previously served as the chair of the sleep medicine in-training exam and chair of the AASM boards review course.