

David Kent is an Associate Professor and Director of Sleep Surgery in the Department of Otolaryngology-Head and Neck Surgery at Vanderbilt University Medical Center. His research explores the neurophysiology of the upper airway, with a particular focus on mechanisms for control of breathing in obstructive sleep apnea (OSA) and their application towards novel OSA treatments.