

Adnan Qureshi is a Managing Director with the Mergers and Acquisitions practice at Kaufman Hall. He provides merger, acquisition, joint venture, and other strategic advisory services for healthcare providers and investors. Mr. Qureshi has over fifteen years of healthcare transaction experience spanning across roles in M&A advisory and corporate development/strategy. Prior to joining Kaufman Hall, he was a Director of Development at SCA Health, a subsidiary of Optum/UnitedHealth Group. In that role, Mr. Qureshi led market entry strategy across several geographies, and sourced, structured, and executed ambulatory surgery center acquisitions. He previously served as an Associate in the Healthcare M&A/Investment Banking Group at Houlihan Lokey, and as a Manager of Strategic Development at DaVita where he led inorganic growth initiatives on behalf of DaVita Rx and HealthCare Partners (now known as Optum Medical Group). As a recognized thought leader in emerging outpatient expansion trends, Mr. Qureshi frequently speaks at conferences and has been featured in written and digital media publications including Modern Healthcare and Becker's Healthcare. In addition to his client service responsibilities, Mr. Qureshi oversees the firm's Community Service and Outreach initiatives. Mr. Qureshi holds a dual B.S. in Finance and Accountancy from the Gies College of Business at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.
