

Helen Combs is the CEO and co-founder of Medovation Clinical Research, bringing more than 25 years of experience in clinical research administration, development, and expansion. She has led clinical trials across all phases and multiple therapeutic areas, with expertise in regulatory compliance, patient recruitment, data management, and study design. She began her research career at Columbia University before relocating to Birmingham, Alabama, where she continues to lead and grow her company.